Bella, age 9

Scary, mystical, strange, dreamy, this book is really crazy, but really, really, really good.

This book is crazy, it's very strange and scary and mystical but it's also really, really, really good.

Nell sees things that other people don't see and then her mum gets turned into a bird by some evil women and Nell becomes determined to save her.

A man from her town agrees to help. Together with her brothers and Pinch the cat they travel into the strange world of dreams to save Nells mum. It then gets a lot stranger and dark.

My favourite bit is when Nell and Badger gamble everything (even Nell herself) in a game of dice against an evil clown.

I would recommend this book for children age 9 or over but it does get confusing and it is very descriptive so I read it aloud with my mum taking turns to read chapters. Younger kids might get too scared.

Annie Sherratt, age 12

This book is the weirdest book I've ever read but I loved it to bits. If you like crazy creatures and have a good imagination then it's perfect for you. This book is the weirdest book I've ever read and requires an imaginative mind to read it. I loved this book because it's funny, crazy and it's full of adventures and strong sibling love.

Zoe Basson, age 9

This book is hard to put into words, but...

'The Fearless Traveler's Guide to Wicked Places' is astonishing! I don't think my dreams will ever be the same again! If you've ever doubted the existence of the place you go to in dreams, this book is for you.

This book automatically goes onto my list of favourite books. Five stars!

Judith, age 11

Absolutely spellbinding I couldn't put the book down. I spent hours upon hours reading this book. The way the author writes it I feel I'm really there watching it all happen around me. I can see what the characters see I can hear what they hear and it's almost magical.

Miyah Smith, age 11

Every time I finished a page I wanted to read on, it kept me in so much suspense! It was a great story, full of adventure and sometimes quite dark.
