LoveReading4kids Reader reviews of The Knights of the Drop-Leaf Table by Kaye Umansky & Ben Whitehouse

Below are the complete reviews, written by the LoveReading4kids members.

Daniel Bisland, age 9

This book is about 6 knights called:

Sir Prancelot (the keen one)

Sir Percy (the fussy one)

Sir Garry (the gloomy one)

Sir Tralahad (the musical one)

Sir Bore de Gannet (ze French one)

Sir AnGela (a girl in disguise)

These six knights are very noisy and they get on peoples' nerves; especially Sir Tralahad who follows the King around playing his irritating songs. King Artie and Queen Gwinnie decide that the knights should have their own meeting room, as they are irritating the whole castle. The knights get a table for their new room but it's not just any table – it's a drop-leaf table which is a table that folds in half. They also get chairs from the kitchen. Their room is now complete! So, they plan a party with French food made by Sir Bore de Gannet. However, the party turns into a big mess with food flying everywhere!

But how?

Why?

You'll have to read the book to find out!

This book is super-readable and is brilliant for dyslexic readers because of the font used and the colour of the pages. If you like funny books, this is for you! I give it 5.

Rose Spear, age 11

The knights are annoying the King and Queen, so Queen Gwinny has an idea to give the knights there own room with a table but it's easier said than done.

The Knights are always clanking around the corridors of the castle and its driving King Artie and Queen Gwinny up the wall. There are six knights who are Sir Prancelot (the keen one), Sir Percy (the fussy one), Sir Gary (the gloomy one), Sir Tralahad (the musical one), Sir bore de gannet (ze French one) and Sir Angela (she's a girl in disguise). Queen Gwinny has a brilliant idea to give the knights there own room with a table which they can sit at but this is easier said than done.

This book is full of laughter and excitement and it is easy for younger children to read too. It also has brilliant illustrations and a great story line. My favourite character is Sir Angela because she is very thoughtful and she tries very hard to blend in. She even changes her name to Sir Angela.

This is a great book and I would recommend this to all smaller children who like a funny book.

Nate Anderson, age 8

*This wasn't the best book I have read because I didn't find the story that interesting. The drop leaf table was a bit strange! However there was good detail and I liked the end bit because the song was funny.

Finn Wade, age 10

Fantastic book, easy to read funny story would recommend to anyone that struggles to read. I felt this book was very good, because the story line was tremendous. The way the story was wrote meant I was able to read it. I found all the characters likeable and there were some really funny jokes. I found the book as a whole very enjoyable and struggled to put the book down.
