Sam Harper, age 9

When two notorious villains break out of prison, life in Tumchester looks bleak. Jumper Jack Flash, a giant rabbit who ties people up with their jumpers and The Panteater, an anteater who is allergic to ants and eats people's pants instead by sticking his tongue up their trouser legs, are hilariously evil. They work for The Boss, a terrifying crook who plans to steal all the sweets in Tumchester and return them with a toxic coating. Their crazy plan may even have worked if it hadn't been for the Fabulous Four Fish Fingers.

Morris, Gary, Bel and Ruby are four friends who have been granted super powers by an elf called Cyril. The powers of a chimpanzee, a nightingale, a slug and a kangaroo come in handy when fighting baddies although cornflakes pulled at high speed from a specialised kangaroo pouch may not be that useful and slugs sometimes need a slugmobile for transport as they can be a bit slow moving!

*The four superheroes make a brilliant team, working together to capture the baddies and unmask 'The Boss' although the people of Tumchester's pants may not be safe for too long... This was a hilarious adventure with lots of daft characters and thrilling escapades. A brilliant read, I loved it!

Hannah Minton, age 7

A really enjoyable funny book I couldn't put down.

The story is about four fabulous friends plotting against the baddies but the baddies are winning. I really enjoyed reading how they made up funny but evil characters make a naughty plan and lose. It might be a bit hard to remember all the names in the books but you can easily work out who is who. I think the pictures are good in the book. There are lots of different sized pictures on every page and this really brings the story to life. The plot is also great. It makes it hard to put the book down. If you like stories of fighting, superheroes and especially bunnies you need this book! All in all I say the famous four fish fingers is really enjoyable.

Nathan Gray, age 9

'The Fabulous Four Fish Fingers' was a fantastic book with lots of imaginative writing. The four characters were called Bell (Nightingale), Ricky (Kangaruby), Morris (Slug Boy) and Gary (The Chimp). The story is about the friends who become superheroes and fight the Panteater and Jumper Jack Flash on their quest to save the world.

I think this book would be suitable for ages 8 to 9 but if your child is older or younger it would be fun read for them too. I would love to be part of the team and be part of their adventures. This is a great book for children because of the great imagery and I loved reading it. It wasn't a difficult read which was great because it is the summer holidays!

Ewan Young, age 10

I read this to my little sister and we were both laughing out loud at it - it is very silly - in a good way!

The four heroes have animal superpowers; a chimp, a nightingale, a kangaroo with a magic pouch, and ... a slug! Together they try to beat evil Jumper Jack Flash and the Panteater, who would rather eat pants than ants - yuk!

With characters like this, you can tell there are going to be some crazy adventures - read it, you won't regret it!

Alexander Bisland, age 8

The book is about four children who go on an adventure to save Tumchester from Jumper Jack Flash (a pirate rabbit) and The Panteater (an anteater that would eat your pants if he could!). It all started when two boys (Morris and Gary) were pretending to fight Zombies (stinging nettles) using sticks. Gary got stung! Then two girls came along called Ruby and Bel and one of them had a parrot called Marvin. Marvin could only say 'Marvin's Starvin'. After a while they went home and on the way they saw a house. Inside the house they found a record player with a teddy bear in it and when they took the teddy bear out, an elf appeared. That is when they become superheroes and the adventure begins!

My favourite character is Marvin because he is funny.

I recommend this book to children age 7+ especially if you like adventure or funny books.

I give it 100,000,000 stars.

James Goodall, age 9

The Fabulous Four Fish Fingers is totally awesome. It is so funny because it has a boy called Gary who gets granted chimpanzee powers, a girl called Ruby who gets granted kangaroo powers, a girl called Bel who gets turned into a nightingale and who can sing really loudly and there is a boy called Morris who gets turned into a slug-boy who is, well, a slug... These four unlikely superheroes have to stop a man who steals everyone's pants and a rabbit-man that ties everyone up in their own jumpers. There is also another man (but I'm not telling you about him, as you don't want the whole story given away...).

I would recommend this story because it will make you laugh out loud and it is a very enjoyable read. Go on, read it and don't let me stop you!

Otis Walker, age 8

It's great and I loved that it's got short chapters so you can read it before going to bed. I think this book was very exciting.

This book is about two boys called Garry and Morris, who are playing zombie wars in a field (with nettles for zombies and sticks for spears) when their best friends called Bell and Ruby come along with a pet parrot called Marvin. This mad bird always says "Marvin starving"!

Marvin escapes and flies into a big dark mansion; the children creep fearfully into the mansion and eventually find him. They also find an old record player with a little teddy stuck in the horn with a tag that said 'if found please dial 27-33-36-61' so they called it. CRASH BANG WALLOP! Through a cloud of smoke, an elf called Cyril appeared. He grants them their wishes to become Super Heroes. Ruby turns into a kangaroo; Garry a chimp; Bell a nightingale and Morris a slug. Their mission is to stop Jumper Jack Flash and the Pant eater from causing trouble but will they succeed?

I think this a great book for 7+ boys and girls, as I don't think anyone under this age will understand it because in parts it is so crazy!

It's great and I loved that it's got short chapters so you can read it before going to bed.

My favourite character was the Panteater because I liked the idea of him eating pants because it's funny that he slurps them up in one gulp and leaves the person crying.
